through the usual daily business, but it is a very hum-drum affair, and the total vol-1% dis 3% year unne of transactions is not much more than a good-sized commission house would handle when speculation is lively. The scalping fraternity are the only ones who take any comfort in the condition of things, and they do not take much. In the wheat pit the range of values is very narrow. Bulls and bears war a ever and rehearse all the old arguments, but they have either been already discounted or have lost whatever force they may have had. The bulls circulate reports of damage to the crop in Ohio, Kentucky, Teanessee, Indians, Southwestern Missouri and Southern Illinois, while the bears are at the same time showing disantches from at the same time showing dispatches from the same sections declaring that the statements in regard to injury have no founda-tion in fact. The slight decline in En-glish counsols for a time imparted a little strength, but traders now seem to regard it as of financial rather than political import. Under these circumstances quotations ease off a trifle when the crowd sells and regain the loss when they even "How long is this stagnation going to last?" was asked of a conservative broker

"Probably until the snow and ice disappear. Nobody now knows the condition of the growing grain. When this fact is once ascertained it will be likely to send the market one way or the other sharply."

"Are there any heavy men under wheat?" "Nobody except Sid Kent, and it is not certain that he is."

Corn is neglected. Small receipts create some demand, but buyers are easily filled.

"If there was any life or strength in
